

There was an additional mylar strip added over the top of the larger mylar covering for some reason. Is this common?